Mary: Hmm. It looks like the restaurant has changed its menu.

James: You're right. Some of the dishes are different.

Mary: Oh, no. The grilled chicken isn't here anymore. You know, the one that I always have, with the delicious sauce.

James: Oh, that's too bad. I know how much you liked it.

Question: What is Mary's problem?

No. 2

John: Excuse me. I'd like two tickets for the Reggae Kings concert on Tuesday.

Patricia: I'm sorry, but the tickets have just sold out. The group is also performing on Thursday, though, and there are still a few seats left.

John: Really? Well, I'll have to call my friend and ask if she's free on Thursday. I'll be back in a few minutes.

Patricia: OK.

Question: What will John do next?

No. 3

Elizabeth: Excuse me. The restroom in this gas station seems to be locked.

Robert: Sorry, but our restroom is being repaired. Please use the one in the convenience store next door.

Elizabeth: I see. May I leave my car here for a few minutes?

Robert: No problem, ma'am. Just leave it parked where it is.

Question: What does Robert suggest Elizabeth do?

Mrs. Abbott: Hello?

Dan: Mrs. Abbott, this is Dan Deacon, your son's homeroom teacher.

Mrs. Abbott: Oh, Mr. Deacon! I completely forgot to call you this morning. Allen is in bed with a fever.

Dan: That's exactly what I'm calling about. I was wondering why he isn't in school today.

Mrs. Abbott: I'm sorry about that hopefully, he'll be well enough to go to school tomorrow.

Question: Why is Dan Deacon calling Mrs. Abbott?

No. 5

Jennifer: Jeremy, I'm thinking about moving. How do you like where you live?

Jeremy: It's convenient for getting to college, but there aren't any supermarkets or grocery stores nearby. I have to drive a few kilometers to buy food.

Jennifer: Isn't the rent a little expensive in your area?

Jeremy: Not really. It's about the same as most places in the city.

Question: What is one problem with Jeremy's neighborhood?

No. 6

Brittany: Grandpa, we've been talking about family histories in class this week.

Grandpa: That's great, Brittany. Would you like to look at my old photo albums? I can tell you about the pictures.

Brittany: Actually, I was wondering if I could borrow one of your pictures to take to school. My teacher told us to bring one to class.

Grandpa: Actually, I was wondering if I could borrow one of your pictures to take to school. My teacher told us to bring one to class.
