Dear Karen,

How are you? I have some big news. My family and I are moving to Minneapolis! My father's company is opening a new office next year, and he'll be the manager there. Next month, my parents are going to Minneapolis to look for a new house. While they are away, my sister and I will stay at my grandmother's house here in Fairfield. We'll move to Minneapolis at the end of December. I'm excited about moving to a big city, but I love Fairfield. I've lived here since I was born. You're my best friend, and we've been at the same school together for eight years. I'm going to miss you so much! Maybe you can visit me in Minneapolis next summer. My parents said that you can come anytime. When you come, we can go to some museums and go sightseeing around the city.

Love,
Cathy

A Festival in Sibenik

There are many children's festivals in cities around Europe. These festivals have music, dancing, and performances* just for children. At some children's festivals, children can learn more about the performers and their work in special workshops.*

One of the oldest children's festivals is the Sibenik Children's Festival in Sibenik, Croatia, in southeastern Europe. This festival was first held in 1958. Some people started the festival to teach children about all kinds of art. The festival soon became famous all over the world. Every June, the best performers from Croatia and around the world come to Sibenik to perform, teach classes, and talk about their work. In 2012, there were more than 1,200 performers in about 135 plays and shows. The festival is 15 days long, and there are many different performances every day. Many of them are in the evening. On some days, they do not end until midnight.

At most international children's festivals, the performers are adults, and the children just watch the shows. But in Sibenik, almost half of the performances are by children and young adults. This makes the festival quite different. The performances are not only in theaters. Musicians, dancers, and acrobats* also perform in the streets around the town.

In the 1990s, there was a war in Croatia. Although it was a difficult time, the Sibenik Children's Festival was held. It brought happiness to people of all ages. Now, the country is peaceful, and the festival is more popular than before.
