Date: July 1, 2012 15:45
Subject: Summer festival

Hello Stacy!

Are you enjoying the summer vacation? On Saturday, there's a big festival at the park near my house. Do you want to go with me? My mother said that you can borrow one of her yukatas. A yukata is a type of summer kimono. If you come to my house around three, my mom will help you to put it on. At the festival, we can eat many kinds of Japanese food and play traditional games. It's not expensive, but you should bring about 2,000 yen. At 7:30, there will be a fireworks show. My mom will drive you home, so you'll be home by nine.

Hope to see you,
Mari

Hi Mari,

Thank you for inviting me. I would love to go. My piano lesson is until three, so I can come to your house at 3:30. Is that OK? I have never worn a yukata before. Please say thank you to your mother. I heard that Japanese people often dance at summer festivals. I'm looking forward to trying that. I don't like Japanese food very much. Will there be other kinds of food at the festival?

次の英文の内容に関して、(31) から (35) までの質問に対する答えとして最も適切なもの、または文を完成させるのに最も適切なものを 1, 2, 3, 4 の中から一つ選び、その番号のマーク欄をぬりつぶさない。

For a Rainy Day

On a rainy day, you will see many people with umbrellas. Sometimes, people use them when it is sunny, too. But where did umbrellas come from?

Umbrellas were used thousands of years ago in countries such as Egypt and China. At first, people only used umbrellas to stay cool on hot days. Later, umbrellas for the rain were made by the Chinese.

In Europe, people started using umbrellas in the 17th century. Only women used umbrellas then. They thought umbrellas looked pretty. So, when a man called Jonas Hanway carried an umbrella around London, people laughed at him. He kept using his umbrella for 30 years, and other men began using umbrellas, too. They often called their umbrellas "Hanways" because of Jonas Hanway.

In 1830, the first shop that only sold umbrellas opened in London. It is still there today, at 53 New Oxford Street. At that time, umbrellas were usually made of wood and were very heavy. Then, in 1852, a man called Samuel Fox invented* umbrellas made of steel.* But only rich people could buy them.

In the 1920s in Germany, someone invented a very small umbrella that could be put in your pocket. This one was like the umbrellas some people use today. In the 1960s, nylon* umbrellas became popular because they were light and cheap. Then, the number of people who use umbrellas grew around the world. Today, about 33 million umbrellas are sold every year in the United States, and most of them are made in China.
