From : Sarah Blake
To : Jane Robinson
Date : July 23
Subject : Dance class

Dear Ms. Robinson,

I saw a poster about hip-hop dance classes at your dance school when I went to Toronto City Hall yesterday. Are there any classes for junior high school students on Saturday mornings or afternoons? I can't take lessons on weekdays because I usually have tennis practice after school. Also, I'd like to know how many students are in the classes. And do your students sometimes perform at events? I have never taken dance lessons before.

Best regards,
Sarah

Subject : Free lesson

Dear Sarah,

Thank you for your e-mail. We have two hip-hop dance classes for junior high school students. One is on Saturdays from 10 a.m., and the other is on Sundays from 2 p.m. The Saturday class has nine students. The Sunday one just started, so it's still small. It only has four students, but we hope another five or six will join soon. Every summer, all of our students perform at the Toronto Summer Festival. It's a big event, so they practice very hard. Can you come this Saturday or Sunday for a free lesson? If you enjoy the lesson, you can join the class. Please bring a towel and wear comfortable shoes and clothes. Let me know if you can come.

Sincerely,
Jane Robinson

Snacks for Sailors*

Crackers are a popular snack all over the world. There are many different shapes and flavors of crackers. Some people like to eat them with cheese or meat on them, and others eat them without anything. Saltines are a very popular kind of cracker. They are square crackers with salt on them, and they also have many small holes.

Crackers were invented in 1792 by John Pearson in Massachusetts in the United States. Pearson owned a bakery, and he wanted to make a kind of food for sailors. Sailors often took bread with them on ships, but the bread spoiled* quickly. Pearson mixed flour and water together, and he baked it until it was very dry. He named his new food Pearson's Pilot Bread, but many sailors called it "hardtack."

The English word "cracker" was not used until 1801. At that time, a man named Josiah Bent had his own hardtack bakery. One day, Bent was baking pieces of hardtack. The pieces burned, and they made a crackling sound.* When he heard this sound, he thought of the word "cracker." Bent also wanted to sell his crackers to people other than sailors. He put salt in his recipe to make them more delicious.

Bent's crackers became very popular in the northeastern United States, and people there often put them in soup. Soon, people in other parts of the country began eating them. Later, a company called Nabisco bought both Pearson's and Bent's bakeries. Nabisco continued to use Bent's recipe, but it gave the crackers a new name, saltines.
