Studying Spanish

Rebecca lives in Canada. She can speak English and French. Next year, she wants to go to Mexico on a homestay, so she started taking a Spanish class at her high school. She had the textbook, but she didn't have a Spanish dictionary. She asked her mother, "Can you take me to the store? I need to buy a dictionary."

The next day, Rebecca and her mother went shopping for a dictionary. First, they looked at electronic dictionaries* in the computer store. The cheapest one was $90. Many of them were more than $100. Rebecca's mother said, "These are very expensive!" Rebecca said, "Let's look in the bookstore." There were no electronic dictionaries in the bookstore, but there were paper ones. Rebecca said, "I like this one because it's small." She bought the small paper dictionary for $20.

When Rebecca got home, she did her homework for Spanish class. She hopes to speak Spanish well in the future.
