

For Teachers: Please have the students read the sentences one at a time and correct their pronunciation of each sentence then have them repeat after you. Wait until after they read the sentence (use the number in place of the missing word) to have the students choose the correct answer to fill in the blank. When the students finish the article, move on to the further questions.

4[A] – Dear Izumi

AP1E 10-1

1. Dear Izumi,
2. I hope you're well.
3. I read an interesting article about technology yesterday. It said that many people here in the U.K. are now choosing to get college degrees by studying online. Do you think online courses are a good way to study?
4. The article also said that in Japan, many parents buy cell phones for their young kids. In your opinion, is it necessary for children to have cell phones?
5. When I was on the train today, the man next to me was talking on his cell phone. Do you think people should be banned from using cell phones on public transportation?
6. I look forward to your reply.

Josh

Further Questions & A *Ask student to answer the question on their own at first. If the student can't answer correctly, have him look at the last page and read the "example answer" for the question. Have the student try to memorize the answer, if it's too long or difficult, you should divide the sentence into 2 or 3 parts to make it easier to remember. Once they have memorized the answer, the teacher should ask the question one last time so that the student can practice answering. Also if you find any mistakes, please mark the page and let me know ASAP.

27. Dear Josh,

28. Thanks for your e-mail.

In my opinion, online courses are not a good way to study for college degrees. Students can learn more by attending seminars and having discussions with other students.

The article you read is right about many Japanese children having cell phones. I think this is necessary to ensure the safety of children. Having a cell phone means they can contact their parents any time they're in trouble.

29.

30. I think using cell phones on trains is OK if it's for functions that won't disturb other passengers, such as e-mail or the Internet.

31.

32. Write again soon.
