Foreign Migration

Meg : Have you read the papers, millions of Koreans are staying and even migrating in the Philippines mainly for the reason of studying the English language and secondly it's the low cost of living.

Taka: Well, It's a hot news. My parents are considering to go to the Philippines after their retirement and plan to stay there for two years or probably migrate forever.

Meg : Really? I know a cold place there in the Philippines and it's well known for tourists. Have you heard about Baguio City?

Taka: Actually, that is their destination. They asked me to search the net about Baguio City and I think I would also love to travel, unwind and see that beautiful hide away. Feels like close to home in Nagano. I want to see the breathtaking horizons ,highlands and the scenic views as well.

Meg : I'll check my nest egg and save up more money as soon as I can . Why don't we go backpacking together. Let's experience and see in our own eyes. How about this summer?

Taka: Not a bad idea.
