How will you be paying?

Reading

Hiro continues talking to the desk clerk.

Clerk: How will you be paying, sir?

Hiro : Excuse me?

Clerk: How will you pay? In cash or by credit card?

Hiro : By credit card.

Clerk: May I see your card, please?

Hiro : Here you are.

Clerk: Fine. Here`s your key. You`re in room 766. Let us know if there`s anything you need.

Hiro : I will. Thank you. Hmm.. I like that.." let us know if there`s anything you need..."I should remember that very useful phrase.

Focus on Grammar

The future progressive describes an action that will be in progress at a specific time in the future: "At 9:00, I will be watching TV" or when another action takes place: "I will be watching TV when you get home."

Future progressive tense is used to indicate action which will be taking place at some time in the future.

For example,

I will be singing at Symphony Hall next month.

The future progressive tense is formed by adding will be to the ?ing form of the main verb.

She will be coming around the mountain in a few minutes.

The future progressive tense is not as common as other tenses, and it can some-times be replaced by simple future, present progressive or even simple present.

I'll be leaving in a few minutes.

I'll leave in a few minutes.

I'm going to leave in a few minutes.

I'm leaving in a few minutes.

I leave in a few minutes.
