解答例

One day, a couple was at home with their two sons. They were sitting at the table, watching their sons playing video games. The father complains that they spent too much time indoors, and the mother seemed to agree with him.

That night, the couple found a website of a campground in the mountains. They thought it was a good idea to go camping with their sons for a change.

That summer, the family drove to the campground. While the sons were sleeping in the backseat, the father was looking forward to fishing in the river with them.

A few hours later, the family arrived at the campground and set up the tent. The father was asking his sons if they wanted to go fishing with him, but they looked indifferent playing games on their portable game players.
