解答例

One evening, a woman was at home with her husband. They were having dinner together, and the woman's husband commented that the dishes she had cooked were delicious. Then, the woman thought of a good idea.

The next weekend, she found a job advertisement in the newspaper and told her husband that she was going to apply for a position in a restaurant. Her husband nodded his head.

A few months later, the woman was very busy cooking in the restaurant with many customers enjoying meals and a few people standing in line.

A few weeks later, it became clear that the couple had a problem. Just a few minutes after the woman's husband came home, the woman had to leave for work. Although she had already cooked dinner for her husband, they didn't have time to enjoy dinner together. The husband had to have dinner alone.
